Something Fishy

One normal afternoon there was a teenage girl called Mary. She was in a laundrette waiting for her washing. While she was waiting Mary was peacefully reading an interesting book all about ocean life. Then she did a big deep yawn. Suddenly she saw a bright blue light so bright that it looked like the sun had turned blue it was coming from the washing machine. Where her clothes appeared to be swimming. She carefully opened the door, stretched out her arm to touch the glowing, blue, magical water. Mary gasped and took a deep breath and looking closer into the machine she saw a sock, but then she said in her head "Is that a bright, glowing, yellow sock fish or am I dreaming?" Bravely she pushed herself in and saw quite a lot of colourful sock fish.

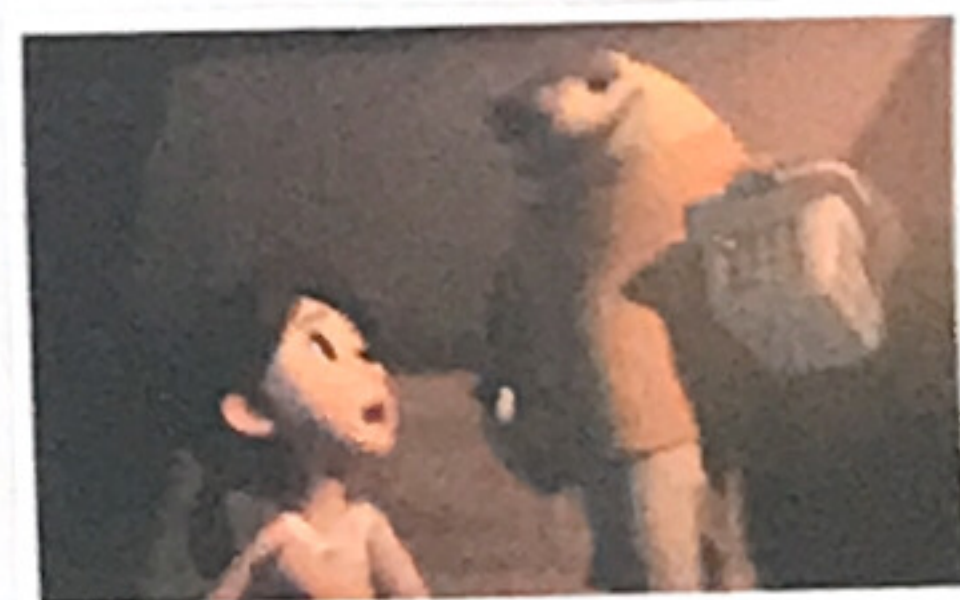

She turned around and to her surprise she sees a wide eyed, T-shirt jelly fish, then she saw a family of bobble hat turtles baby blue turtle, mummy blue turtle and daddy blue turtle. As she floated away she noticed the same fish as when she plunked her head in the machine, she only realized that when she caught it, then Mary saw a colossal piranha with very sharp teeth.

Mary screamed! Shiny bubbles came floating out of her mouth. She was swimming as quickly as she could. Then she saw a long piece of kelp and hid behind it before the piranha could see her. It looked confused. Mary saw the light through the glass door of the laundrette and swam as fast as she could towards it. The piranha chased her chomping his wide jaws. They both swam as fast as they could. Mary lumped out and so did the pants. She dared to touch it, but then a shark man said "I think those are mine."
